THE CAUSE OF CRIME.

The Philadelphia North American, after a study of the criminal record of the past few months comes to the conclusion that "Criminals have developed a system of attack that is more efficient than the defensive armor of society."

Which is saying that the crime wave that is spreading over the land is caused by the lax enforcement of the laws. And in an address to the Missouri Bar Association, Federal Judge Landis said: "Get the criminal, and when you get him, keep him."

The consensus of the opinion of the press of the nation is that the lax enforcement of the law is the principal cause of the crime wave. Corrupt politics makes it hard to "Get the criminal," and hard to keep him. "It is a hopeful sign," says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "that a distinguished jurist should express the opinion that the courts were largely responsible for the increase in crime."

Public sentiment is a large factor in law enforcement, but where courts play politics and make it easy for the law violator to evade the penalties, the average citizen is apt to say, "Oh, what's the use."

No criminal ever started on his crime career by committing big offences. It is usually that he is encouraged to go deeper in crime by the ease with which he evades the penalties for the minor offences.

Refusal to enforce the law creates a spirit of disregard for the law that saps the very foundation of good government. Lawlessness rears its head only where the law enforcement is lax. Where the courts promptly and surely bring the offenders to book for their offences a spirit of respect for the law and honor to the courts is found.

The grand jury at the last term of the court did not do much toward starting prosecutions for the minor offences. Whether it was wholly the fault of the grand jury or not can not be stated. But the fact remains that no indictments were made from witnesses who could have been easily had. There is a noticeable and an ominous growth in the disregard for the law in this section. The Courier has been criticised by some and accused of centering its efforts to turn the light upon the illicit liquor traffic. It is true that it has said more about the liquor violations than the others for obvious reasons, but it is just as earnestly pleads for the enforcement of the law in all manner of offences. Most of the minor offences are caused by the liquor traffic, and the suppression of that would automatically put an end to many other misdemeanors.

But there is developing a strong sentiment in favor of law enforcement in the county. Men and women are coming out into the open and pledging their aid in the discovering of evidence to convict. The sentiment or law enforcement has always existed with the majority of our citizens, but it has been dormant for the reason that they saw little hope of better things. But, lining up behind the Courier in its plea for vigorous action, the good citizens—men and women—are, in this election year, girding themselves for an effort to secure adequate enforcement of the law. Before the primary that sentiment will be so crystalized that it will control.

Wait and see.

WOMAN'S PART IN POLITICS.

Much has been gussed as to what effect on the political situation the granting of the ballot to women would have, but all is merely guess work, as there has been nothing to base an accurate opinion upon so far.

Advocates of equal suffrage have contended that the entry of the women in politics would purify and elevate. The real rest of that is coming in the selection of local officers. National elections are so far removed that personal knowledge does not enter into it. In local affairs it is different. We know the individual reputations of the candidates for local offices and are able to judge as to their fitness, and in Morgan county the Courier is confident that the women will be the greatest factor in electing good men to office.

In the investigations being conducted by it, the Courier finds that the women are much more determined to know the character of the candidates than the men, and that they are almost unanimous in the determination to elect men who give hope for the strict enforcement of the law.

We learn that there is on foot a movement among them to get together and determine upon the men most likely to faithfully do their duty, and vote for them. The Courier will aid this movement all that it can, and it believes that there are hundreds of men in the county who will join in a movement of this kind. We need to elect men for the enforcement of the law who will not cater to the political influence of the lawless and who will earnestly strive to wipe out the bootlegging and moonshining in the county.

If the movement above mentioned materializes the Courier tenders to the women all the space needed for publicity in accomplishing their undertaking.

Editor Courier,
West Liberty, Ky.
Dear Sir:

This is to advise you of a change in my address. Kindly send my paper to the above address.

Also I should like to advise you that those envelopes which I ordered last fall were never received. Would you kindly investigate the delay? However, I am sure this was merely an oversight on your part. Now, if these have never been printed, it will be unnecessary to print them now as I have sold my theatre at Hazard.

Trusting that you are enjoying a splendid business, and wishing you a very happy and successful New Year, I am,
Respectfully yours,
CLINTON FUGATE.

Our records show the the last order for printing we had for you was delivered and paid for. If you sent an order for work that was not received it failed to reach us.

Dear Boys:

Here is a New Year's greeting in the shape of a check for $3.00, which will settle my past due account and extend my subscription for another year, I guess. I am always glad to hear the news from home. Thanking you for past favors, I am, Yours, least in the Courier family,
L. A. MUSIC.

Not the least, Leonard, you are one of the "old reliables" who stand so loyally by the Courier, and your words of commendation have often made us feel that our work for good was at least bearing some fruit.

Malone, Ky., Jan. 4, 1921.
Editor Courier,
West Liberty, Ky.
Dear Sir:

You will please send my paper to me at Malone, Ky. I have come back to stay as work is dull where I have been. Sorry to be so much trouble to you in changing my address so much.

Yours as ever,
D. B. HAVENS.

No trouble at all, Mr. Havens, we change the addresses of our subscribers whenever they request it. We want them to get the Courier.

Pikeville, Ky., Jan. 6, 1921
Licking Valley Courier,
West Liberty, Ky.
Gentlemen:

Enclosed you will find our check for $1.35 for advertising. We only got one copy of the paper that contained the ad, therefore did not know that you had run it twice. We expect to give you some work soon.

Yours very truly,
J. T. GEVEDON.

Greetings From an Old Friend.
We wish the Courier and crew a happy and prosperous New Year. We also wish our kindred and friends in old Morgan county the best year of their lives. A line from any of them will be highly appreciated. We can not write to all of them except thru the columns of the Courier, and we again wish each of them the compliments of the season.
Your devoted kinsman and friend,
J. T. GEVEDON.

Hogs For Sale.
I have a few more hogs left, both barrows and sows. Will trade them to corn. Call while you can get your choice.

HUGH HAMILTON,
Greener, Ky.

When a watch gets run down it will stop working, but a man hasn't that much sense.

Single women haven't any pockets into which to put their hands. But it is different with married women.

No married man thinks of flirting when he is away from home—until a good-looking girl comes along.

"About all you learn from arguing with another man is that the other man is a thick-headed wampus, who is so blind that he can't see, and won't let you show him.

"Who was the first bookkeeper?"
"Can't imagine."
"Why, Eve was the first bookkeeper, when she introduced the loose-leaf system."—Science and invention.

Small, But Courageous.
Evidently thinking the more he got the more he had to love, J. H. Hamilton brought to his home in Santa Ana, Calif., a bride weighing 725 pounds. Mr. Hamilton weighs only 155 pounds. The bride was attended by her little sister, who weighs but 420 pounds.

For Sale—A 7-year-old cow. Will be fresh in March.

YOUR HOME TOWN PAPER.

(Wyo. State Journal.)
When people want to interest distant friends in their home town they send away copies of the local newspaper. When any one wants to know what kind of a place distant town is he sends for a copy of the local newspaper. When the merchants are full of courage and advertise freely an impression is created among the many people outside the town who see the paper that this is an exceedingly bright and wide-awake business town. If at times the merchants let up a little on their advertising the town does not look so good to outsiders. Your paper, then, is the representative—the spokesman for your community. As your publication appears to those outside your immediate locality, so must your town appear to them. Editorials and items of news all have their place, but the stranger to your town will closely follow the advertisements carried in your paper, for by this means he judges the character and extent of the business of the community.
